Reflective journals have been used by post-secondary educators in a wide variety of teacher-training courses to encourage students to better understand the topics that they are studying. Reflective journals are often used in courses in which pre-service and in-service teachers are studying both the theoretical and practical aspects of the subject matter such as secondary teaching methods, language and literacy, teacher education, and outdoor education. While there are books on the market that address some facets of reflective journaling, there are no integrative books such as Reflective Journaling: Unlocking the Power and the Potential that are targeted specifically to pre-service and in-service teachers. There developing time management skills, building problem-solving skills, fostering insight, and decreasing stress. Both writing and rereading journal entries allow the journal keeper to document thinking; to track changes and review observations; and to examine assumptions and so gain fresh perspectives and insights over past events. The authors present the background to help readers make an informed decision about the value of journals and to determine whether journals will fit appropriately with their teaching objectives or help manage their personal and professional lives. They offer insights and advice on selecting the format or formats and techniques most appropriate for the reader's purposes.

The Student Nurse Guide believes in inspiring future nurses through a different approach in training. We believe doing a degree in nursing doesn't have to be unnecessarily hard/stressful/exhausting or financially ruin you! We believe anyone can be a nurse no matter what challenges you have to overcome. Reflective practice is one of the very first things you will learn about when you start uni & it is incredibly boring! At first it seems a very daunting & complex process with theories and models and something you have to get right if you want to qualify - no pressure! You also may have to write one of your first assignments about reflection and include something from practice to reflect on. Just deciding what to reflect on can seem to take forever, let alone writing the actual reflective account. Why writing reflective accounts are important: *It helps you to remember key learning experiences. *You have recorded examples to draw on when writing assignments. *It helps develop your self-awareness. *Showcases your development journey & achievements. *Builds your critical analysis & problem solving skills. *Helps you to develop your reflection in action vs reflection on action. *It's part of the NMC code to be a reflective practitioner through continuous reflection. If you haven't already started keeping a reflective journal you will need to soon. Most universities recommend students start one at the beginning of their degree, to help them develop their reflection skills, and as a way of keeping all their reflective accounts in one place. The Student Nurse Guide Reflective Journal was designed specifically for nursing

Some way. Remember this can be both positive and negative; you don't have to be too critical of yourself. Once you have at least described what happened, you can always come back and reflect on it at a later time. Always be honest with yourself when reflecting even if it makes you feel uncomfortable at times. Writing reflective accounts is a skill you will develop the more you practice it. Once you have learnt about the different theories and modules on reflection, you will find a style you prefer and apply it to guide your own reflective account writing.
